Japanese Language & Literature Capstone Enrollment Form

JPTR 4991 Japanese Capstone

To satisfy the capstone requirement in Japanese Language and Literature, students must demonstrate a degree of proficiency in Japanese – in a final paper written for a course of their choice. Because completion of the capstone requirement demands advanced language proficiency, it is strongly recommended that students take their capstone course in the spring semester of their final year.

Students must enroll in TWO courses at the same time to fulfill the capstone requirement:

1) Any non-survey JPTR 3000-level or JAPN 4000-level course, the content of which is concerned with Japanese language, literature or culture that requires a final paper.

   The consent of the instructor is required before the course can be used for this purpose [See point 2]

2) The one-credit Japanese Capstone 4991.
   This class does not require any attendance or assignment, but fulfills the extra language requirement for the final paper. Enrollment for this course is restricted to "Instructor Permission Only," and is subject to the same add/drop regulations as other courses. Enrollment must be approved by the Japanese Language & Literature Major Advisor. To this end, both the instructor of the course being used for capstone and the Major Advisor need to sign this form. You are encouraged to seek approval before the deadline to add courses.

The student will not be able to graduate without fulfilling this requirement.
